The Allegheny Front is a small but critical section of the Appalachian range—an ancient chain of mountains, forests, valleys and rivers that stretches approximately 2,000 miles from Alabama to Canada. This is one of the most resilient, diverse and productive ecosystems on Planet Earth. This poster depicts some of the iconic plants, mammals, birds, trees, amphibians, insects and fish that call the Allegheny Front home.

To see a more comprehensive list and to learn about how The Nature Conservancy conserves this special place, visit Nature.org/AlleghenyFrontSpecies.